

Mollie and her mother served three kinds of tea—chamomile, Earl Grey and green—and everyone remarked on the fluffiness of the scones, the richness of the cream, the sweetness of the strawberries and the lusciousness of the jam. Mollie wished her dad were there, getting cream in his beard and making her mother giggle.

After tea was finished, Elizabeth and Olaf played duets, Forest and Ocean gurgled, and a couple of the puppies howled along with the music.
